

November 1 We went over what the science fair was all about. Me and my partner brainstormed ideas. This was the start of our science fair.

November 9

We joined the platform eventually because we had troubles with google classroom. And this is when our procrastination began because of our horrible schedules and plannings.

November 20

We decided on the idea of triclosan researching some facts about our new science fair idea. This project was chosen via a difficult yet simple process of elimination. First we consider how obesity affects humans via testing obese rats. We quickly realized how impractical and ridiculous of an idea this was. We then proceed to ponder about the supposed idea of toothpaste being toxic to baboons. After gathering our separated brain cells, we decided to do a topic related to the dangers of dentistry and periodontics.

November 28

We just researched a little bit on our at the time, empty, project. A desolate domain or deserted district as some exquisite beings may say. Really not doing anything because we didn't have that drive and spirit honestly.

December 6

My partner left and I really did nothing.

December 14

I skipped this because I forgot. What happened on this uneventful day.

January 9

My partner came back and I did nothing.

Partner Perspective: I did nothing too because when you travel across the Pacific Ocean and stuff you really don't feel like doing anything productive. I mean when was the last time you wanted to do extracurriculars after traveling for 24 hours straight. Get it. Yeah that's what I thought.

January 29

We skimmed through entries on triclosan reading every drip of information and soon we filled out buckets of information. Trucks of research were formed and many more were to come in the times of prosperity and happiness.

January 25

Me and my partner hit a wall of despair as we realized we were not sourcing up good information and all of our work was not needed. We basked in our failures but had to advance so with a heavy heart we abandoned the information we thought was good. The reason was we found out we were literally just writing down random words and combining them together like a homunculus of a sentence. It was horrific. Sentences like “Evil triclosan causes cancer disease” were being formed and we couldn’t let this slide. So we started actually researching on good reliable websites and creating readable sentences.

February 2 through 23

We just researched more information about Triclosan. Worked on slides from time to time.

February 29

Me and my partner started planning out our trifold placing information throughout the ginormous wall. Then we suddenly realized that our analysis was not enough.

March 2

My partner gave me more information on the analysis. So I put it on the triclosan trifold. Wait back up, back up... We did extravagant amounts of research and after printing out numerous articles and documents we succeeded in achieving our final goal... Putting the random stuff that is kinda uneventful on our SPRAY PAINTED AND DOUBLE PAINTED, SUPER COOL, Trifold. After 3 days of dubious work and procrastination gluing and planning. We achieved our final product. TREACHEROUS TRICLOSAN. . . Rest of our days were pointless.
